Annotated Bibliography

“Career Test High School College Students Free Job Quiz Best Tests Teens.” Career Test:

Free Tests & Quiz for Students and Adults, www.yourfreecareertest.com/.

The annotation above is a website allows teens to take different surveys that provides them with information towards what type of career they might be best in. The information comes back in the form of percentages for each different category of professions. Some categories include Health and Medical or Arts and Culinary and more. The surveys are given using a total of 40 questions. The questions typically ask about what you are interested in, what type of things you enjoy, or what you like to learn about. When taking the test I got results with the highest of 50% in a Health and medical field while all other fields came back with a percentage lower than 33.33%. This career survey was useful when helping me find something i would most likely be interested in as well as almost confirming that becoming a veterinarian would be something that could be good for me.

E. Baldwin, Professional interview, December 12, 2017

Dr. Emily Baldwin is an Associate Veterinarian and has a Bachelor's Degree and Doctorate of Veterinary Medicine. Dr. Baldwin has been working in her field for a total of 3 and a half years. I conducted an interview with Dr. Baldwin over email where i sent her a total of 16 different questions that I had about being a veterinarian. Most of my questions were about what type of things were required to have for being a veterinarian and what her daily life consists of while being a veterinarian. During this interview, I was able to learn information about the career and ask the questions that I have always had. After reading the responses that I received from Dr. Baldwin I learned things about what it takes to be a veterinarian and the things that help bring you to the position in veterinary medicine that you want to be in.

“Job Description for an Associate Veterinarian.” Career Trend, careertrend.com/about-6473701-job-description-associate-veterinarian.html.

The annotation above is a website that gives more information behind what being an Associate Veterinarian actually is. The website gives a brief analysis of the job itself as well as other useful information. The website discusses the responsibilities of an Associate Veterinarian which mostly involves working with domestic animals and providing different forms of medical care. The website also discusses the different job opportunities such as positions in the military, zoo animals, veterinary medicine, and veterinary surgeons. The website gives information about the education behind being an Associate Veterinarian as well as information about the different wages each different type of veterinarian makes. This source was reliable in the way that it was able to provide me with the basic information about the career path that I would need to know. I was also able to research the different types of veterinarians and compare them to each other and think about what I think would be best for me.

The annotation above is a website that allows people to find different volunteer opportunities. The website allows you to choose different filters that help to filter out the opportunities that would be best for you to volunteer in. It also allows you to find volunteer opportunities that would help you with your career. When looking for different volunteer opportunities I was able to find a lot of different organizations that work with animals and are in constant need of volunteers. Some organizations include different humane societies as well some local hospitals with small opportunities. Each match that I was able to find would be something that would help me in the future when doing things such as applying for jobs and graduate colleges for veterinary medicine which ultimately is extremely competitive and each opportunity helps. This website helped me find chances to log hours for community service as well as give me a chance to see if helping in that humane society would be something that I would be interested in continuing to do in the future.

Scholarships.com. “Search Over 3.7 Million College Scholarships & Grants.” Scholarships for College Free College Scholarship Search 2017, www.scholarships.com/.

Scholarships.com is a free website that offers access to thousands of different scholarships. Each different scholarship fits into a specific category on the website which allows for student to have easy access to the scholarships that fit them. The website allows students to search for scholarships using specific data to help find the perfect one for them. You are able to put in information such as your GPA, major, minor, college, athletics, state, ethnicity and more. It also is a great website to find other student resources such as college guides, calendars for test like the ACT and SAT, and college checklist which were very useful to me. Scholarships.com can also help you find your perfect college and helping you choose one that would best benefit you and the major you plan on studying. I was able to use this website to find a lot of the scholarships that I applied for and am still currently applying for. The website also helped me find a little bit more information on the colleges I was considering applying to and helped me find the best pre- veterinary program that best suited me and what I wanted.

“Job Search.” Careers.org, www.careers.org/.

The annotation above is a website that helps you with multiple things revolving around careers. This website allows you to have easy access to jobs around you and jobs that would be best suited for you. It also is a informational website that allows people to research different careers. When researching different types of careers, you can find different internship opportunities as well as educational information. Careers.org is able to tell you things about the level of education you would need for a certain job or what it would be like day to day in that career choice. This source has the resources to calculate different salaries depending on things like the state and level of education and more as well as giving people the best resources to find more educational background information on a career. When using this website, I was able to find more on what the different types of salaries would be for the different types of veterinarians as well as learn a bit more about what the job is like the full levels of education I would need to achieve to get to where I want to be.

“Veterinary specialists.” Veterinary specialists,

www.avma.org/public/YourVet/Pages/veterinary-specialists.aspx.

The source above is a website that allows you to learn more about what a veterinarian is and what the different types of vet practices are. The specific page on the website above is just one of the many pages that allows you to see what the different types of specials are and gives you a brief description of each different practice. This website is also great for finding out more information on the different types of careers in the veterinary field and what you need to be able to obtain that career. Not only is this website great for learning more information when deciding on what your future career might be and what you want to study, but it also allows for students who are currently in veterinary school or doing the pre-requisite programs to find all of the resources you need. It also keeps you updated on the latest advancements in the veterinary field which is always something that you should keep up on when becoming a veterinarian. When using this website, I was able to find more information on specific specialties in veterinary medicine aside from just your general veterinarian.

“Find Scholarships for College for FREE.” Fastweb, www.fastweb.com/.

The source above is another website that allows students to have easy and free access to different scholarships. The website allows you to filter out the different types of scholarships that would be best for you. Not only is this website great for scholarships but I found myself using it more for its career planning. This website helps find a career that is best suited for you and helps you take the next steps towards that career. It allows you to find different formats for cover letters, resumes, and internships. Although you have to sign up and be a member to access those career planning tips, once you begin your membership that information is extremely useful. I used the website to help me more for my senior project as far as cover letters go and looking for different internships that would best suit me. I also was able to find and apply to different scholarships and find different career tips that I would need in the future.
